

TWO NEW YORKERS GIVE $150,000 TO TEACHERS' COLLEGE

Felix M. Warburg Found
Civic Education Chair—Mrs.
Jenkins Aids Nursing.

Two donations aggregating $150,000 were made to Teachers' College, Columbia University, yesterday, $100,000 by Felix M. Warburg to found a chair of civic education in memory of Jacob Schiff, and $50,000 by Mrs. Helen Hartley Jenkins to further endow the department of nursing.

Announcement of acceptance of the gifts was made by Provost Upton immediately after a meeting of the Board of Trustees of Teachers' College.

"This gift enables the college to make more vital than ever before the work it is now doing in training for better citizenship," Provost Upton said, discussing the gift of Mr. Warburg. "Our efforts now include special courses for teachers of scouting and recreational leadership, where the opportunities are especially rich for making pupils aware of their relations to their civic and social groups; courses for training teachers of English for foreigners and courses for instructors in the Americanization of the foreigner in co-operation with the Department of Education of the State of New York."

"Research in education is being placed on the same basis as that in medicine and engineering," Dr. Albert Shieff, associate director of the recently established Institute of Educational Research is supplementing by special researches the preparation of teachers to improve citizenship training."

Regarding the gift of Mrs. Jenkins, Provost Upton said:

"It supplements a gift of $150,000 made by Mrs. Jenkins in 1910 for the same purpose. Through the instruction at the college nurses are prepared to be teachers in schools of nursing. Superintendents of hospitals or public health nurses. From six students in 1901 the enrollment has grown to 486 registered nurses in 1921."

Announcement was made of the appointment of Dr. James F. Hoie of the Chicago Normal College as associate professor of education, in charge of the external courses, and Dr. Rudolph of Ohio State University as associate professor of educational psychology.

STORE HOLD-UP BLOCK FROM POLICE STATION

Youths Handcuff Clerk and Battle Policeman in Dark Cellar Until Subdued.

Ignoring the fact that the place they selected was only a block from the Gates Avenue Police Station, where nearly a hundred patrolmen were waiting the time to turn out, two youths held up and handcuffed the clerk in a Federal grocery store at No. 359 Throop Avenue, Brooklyn, yesterday afternoon, but were captured after a fight in an unlighted cellar.

Trevor Barnes of No. 101 West 60th Street, the clerk, was alone shortly before 4 o'clock when two roughly dressed youths came in and one asked for a box of crackers. Barnes took the box from the shelf and turned to face two automatic pistols. "Stick up your hands!" the youths ordered. Barnes obeyed, and while one of the robbers took $25 from the cash register the other snapped a pair of handcuffs on Barnes's wrists. Then both ran from the store. Barnes followed, yelling, "Police!"

The fugitives ran through Throop Avenue to Lexington Avenue just as Patrolman Schwabell arrived. The policeman saw them dash into the gateway of the tenement No. 476 Lexington Avenue, but when he tried to follow he found the door locked. He put his shoulders to the door and it gave way. Tenants told him two men had fled to the cellar.

Schwabell, although warned the fugitives were armed, went down after them. As he entered the dark cellar the two youths sprang at him, but Schwabell, after about ten minutes of grappling with them, laid them low with his club.

At the Gates Avenue Police Station the prisoners said they were Bruno Akumeliez, sixteen, of No. 34 Grand Street, and William Loxie, twenty, of No. 476 Lexington Avenue, Brooklyn. They were charged with robbery.
